Poslam supplies precisely the curative influences to which inflamed and irritated skin is usually inclined to yield. The comfort that comes with relief in the cessation of the awful itching is especially welcome, and the undue redness of the skin often responds to Poslam over night.

Thousands today know of the efficiency of Poslam in the treatment of eczema, acne, herpes, rash, pimples, itch, scaly scalp and kindred skin diseases.

As to soap for the skin—Poslam Soap excels in rich, wholesome qualities. Try daily, one month, for toilet and bath.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl of 16. I went with a fellow off and on for over a year, but he would never make a date with me to come to the house. He was never rude to me in any way and I always enjoyed being with him. A few weeks ago he made a date with me and did not come until very late, and so I quit him. Do you think I did right?

(2) I have been corresponding with a boy in a distant city for quite a while. In one of his late letters he asked me to go with him and I wrote back and told him I would not, but that I would keep on writing. He wrote back and said that it was all right and he wanted to keep on writing. Do you think I ought to write to him or not?

(3) There is a fellow in the same town that I live in with whom I would like to go. He has told several people that he was going to try to go with me, but he has never asked me. Do you think he will? He is a very nice boy.

(4) Is there any harm for girl and boy friends to exchange pictures?

(5) Do you think it is a disgrace for girls to work out?

(6) What wages should a girl get on a farm where there are six in the family?

(7) When she is getting $3.50 a week do you think she ought to get home on Saturday?

A GIRL FROM THE COUNTRY.

(1) A boy who will not call at a girl's house is not the sort she ought to have anything to do with. I think you did well to give him up.

(2) Write to him.

(3) If he were very anxious to go with you he would tell you about it instead of others. He may ask to call on you, though.

(4) It is silly for a girl to give her picture to a boy, because it isn't apt to be valued. Then, if a boy doesn't turn out to be all she expected he was, a girl feels rather uncomfortable to think he has her picture.

(5) Indeed I do not. A girl gets practical training for her future and has more money as a result of her labors. The girl who works in a shop earns so little that after she has paid for her board and room she has practically nothing left.

leaves and in the other rooms of the house were yellow and white chrysanthemums. Piano numbers were given by Miss Ivy Beck and games and contests were enjoyed, the prizes in the latter going to Miss Myrtle Garner of Davenport, Miss Lola Cardall and Miss Hilda Vogt. A course lunch was served during the evening and later the bride was showered with articles for her new kitchen.

FATHERS AND PARENTS TO MEET.

The program will consist of music by some of the teachers and an address by Superintendent E. C. Fisher upon the parent-teacher organizations, their purpose and possibilities. Following this, the parents will be asked to express themselves concerning the feasibility of a parent-teacher organization for the Lincoln school. If such an organization is deemed desirable, preliminary steps for forming same, electing officers, et cetera, will then take place.

It is expected that a very large attendance will be recorded at this meeting.

HOT AT HALLOWEEN PARTY.

William McDonough entertained 14 boys and girls from 7 to 10 o'clock last evening at his home, 1611 Eleventh avenue. The guests came in ghost costumes and were met at the door by a witch who escorted them to the attic where the party was held. The attic had been decorated with autumn leaves, pumpkins, corn stalks and black and orange crepe paper. There were Halloween games of all sorts and later a Halloween supper was served. The dining table had as a centerpiece a grinning pumpkin jack-o'-lantern and black cats, witches, ghosts, etc., further trimmed the table. Halloween favors were given the children and before they left they enjoyed a witches' light and had their fortunes told.

MRS. MERRILL TELLS OF SHAW'S WORK.

George Bernard Shaw, the great English dramatist, was the subject of Mrs. Anthony French Merrill's third lecture of the series, "Mornings with the Moderns," yesterday, at Allen, the home of Mrs. F. G. Allen, was opened to the large number who are attending the course, the hall room being used so that all could be accommodated.

The sketch of Shaw's life as given by Mrs. Merrill was unusually interesting and she commented on his writings and spoke especially of his work, "Major Barbara," pointing out his peculiarities in this particular book and showing how he does his best to keep present-day happenings to the fore. His first school, first college and first university life, according to Mrs. Merrill, and he believes in specializing, making most of a special gift. He is very versatile, musical and artistic, has no tradition, no humor and is an enemy to pretense and blind selfishness. He is perfectly indifferent to the opinion of the world but loves the limelight, has a charming personality and is a fine conversationalist. He has a bitter habit of railing and is pictured as a terrible man, stern with himself and has no sympathy with dis-

(6) It depends upon what the girls in that locality are getting, how much she is helped by members of the family and the amount of work she has to do. If some one else does the washing or washing and ironing she should not get as much as the girl who has to do it.

(7) No, I think she ought to have one afternoon a week off and Sunday afternoon and evening. But on Sunday morning, when the members of the family want to rest and go to church, the girl ought to be around. Don't misunderstand me; the girl needs rest as much as anyone else, but she can take it when there is a better opportunity. She is paid to relieve the family.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) What is a recipe for a good and harmless face bleach?

(2) What would be nice to give a middle-aged man for a birthday and wedding present, as he is going to be married on his birthday?

(3) Would it be all right for me to keep everything that belonged to a sister who had died, as she told me I might a short time ago? Or must I ask her husband first?

(4) Should a girl wear a hat when she is going to be married at the home of the minister? She is going to wear a colored dress.

A FOREIGNER.
(1) There are various kinds of face bleaches—for tan, sallow skin, redness, etc. If you tell me what the bleach is wanted for I can answer you.

(2) A piece of silver—a meat fork, gravy ladle or something like that. A wedding present should be given to the bride.

(3) As long as she left the things to you the husband probably would not object, though of course you should mention the matter to him before taking them.

(4) She may wear her hat or take it off. Whatever she wants to do will be all right at an informal ceremony.

sipation. With far-gazing eyes, peculiar ears, pale face and reddish gray hair he is called an Irish Mephistopheles. He is said to have inherited his wit from his mother.

His recognition by society was slow, but he later became a fashion and his plays were the rage. He has written five unsuccessful novels and a great many very fine plays. It was he, it is said, who started the controversy that Shakespeare's plays were works of Bacon and he was called Shakespeare's plays "marionettes."
